

2011 JUBILEE
CONCERT SEASON

CELEBRATE WITH US! SEE YOU 3-4 SEPTEMBER

The Sinfonia and Youth Orchestra celebrate their fiftieth anniversary the first weekend of September. And we want you to join the celebration! Established in 1961 the Youth Orchestra and then its younger 'older brother', the Sinfonia have formed a core part of Palmerston North's cultural life while providing people opportunities to play in ensembles and make music together. A few former members have gone on to make careers in orchestral music – one of whom, NZSO cellist Robert Ibell, returns to solo with the Sinfonia as part of the Jubilee concert on Sunday 4 September.

But most of us just enjoy playing our instruments to create and explore music together in a way that is impossible individually. Collectively we are more than the sum of our talent! And we invite all former members to crawl under their beds, climb into the attic or wrestle in the back of the wardrobe to find and dust off their instruments and join us for a play-along of Saint-Saens' Organ Symphony and Schubert's 6th Symphony on Saturday 3 September. For those of you with self-doubt read or Google Jasper Rees' best-selling book, I Found My Horn about a 40-year old man who rediscovers his French horn – and himself. The Guardian summarised it: "music affords exaltation: a heady release from the personal trauma of the mid-life crisis". The Play-along promises to be fun and the sheer numbers and diversity of players in the room should cover any number of duff notes and wrong entries!

And of course, after the Play-along, bowings can be checked, reeds discussed, and friendships renewed at the Jubilee

Fifty years is a Very Long Time for members of the present youth orchestra, and a lifetime for many Sinfonia members. It has certainly been a life-time's work for our musical director, John Schwabe, who conducts the Sinfonia and Youth Orchestra in his grand Finale before retiring.

For the record, we are launching a book specially commissioned from Hawke's Bay author Dorothy Pilkington, Playing On: A history of the Manawatu Youth Orchestra 1987-2011. While focusing on the last 25 years, it also contains a comprehensive list of players, programmes played and photos of members. Dorothy also gives a short history of classical music in the Manawatu, back to the Palmerston North Philharmonic Society formed in 1885. Fifty years is a substantial part of a 126 year heritage we should be proud of and celebrate in style.

MANAWATU SINFONIA PULLS OUT THE STOPS FOR WORLD PREMIERE

Palmerston North is to hear the world first performance of the Anniversary Overture specially commissioned by the Manawatu Sinfonia for its 50th Jubilee concert in September.

'Anniversary Overture' composed by young Wellington composer, Tabea Squire, uses a large orchestra, complete with tuba, harp, and percussion to celebrate the occasion.

Squire explains she is influenced by eastern European composers, Janacek and Khachaturian, and "anything gypsy, Scottish or in an uneven time signature".

"The final section also draws on what happens when you pull out most of the stops on our local church organ," says Squire.

The Sinfonia wanted to commission a composition as a lasting record of its Jubilee financially supported by the Endeavour Community Trust and Molly Atkinson Arts Trust.

The Jubilee Committee decided that as we have a youth orchestra, we should support young musicians of today, rather than look to established composers. Commissioning a sizeable work from a young composer was a gamble. But the committee was impressed by Squire's record. Aged 22, Squire is already a successful composer and musician. She was the NZSO National Youth Orchestra composer in residence for 2009 and the NZSO will record another of her compositions immediately after the Overture's premiere .

She also plays violin in the National Youth Orchestra and completes her Music honours degree at Victoria University this year. She loves playing violin, but one thing is clear, "I will always compose, because I can't stop myself from composing", says Squire.
